

Found the perfect hideout: the new Giant's big rolling home, way up high on giant rubber wheels. Snug as a bug.

Chugga-chugga-chugga. The garage floor started rumbling under me. Something huge had arrived — and my adventures were about to get a lot bigger, on four wheels.

The garage door rumbled all the way up — and there it stood. Not a car. Not a truck. Something enormous, with wheels taller than me and an actual home built right on its back!

I crept closer, one brave paw at a time. The tire alone was bigger than my whole bed. One sniff: rubber, road, and something that smelled a lot like adventure.

Creeeeak — a side door swung open, and warm light spilled out. Inside: soft seats, big windows, and just enough room for one very ready explorer.

I hopped up onto the step and looked out at the road stretching on forever. Six inches tall — and about to cover a whole lot of new ground.

My first big adventure is done. The real journey is just beginning. Next up: Book 2, Four Wheels and a Rumble. Stay curious. Your friend in every adventure — Pepper.
